Promoting a healthy Lifestyle through Choice

A healthy lunch box includes food from each of the four main food

Sandwiches are often the main part of a lunch box

Bread

Try different varieties of bread e.g. sliced bread, rolls, baps, pitas, baguettes. Choose different types e.g. wholemeal, white or granary.

Try to include some fruit or vegetables in the fillings. You could make up some of your own fillings:

ham & tomato

chicken & salad

tuna & sweetcorn sardine & tomato

egg & cress

hummus & grated carrot corned beef & tomato salmon & cucumber

cream cheese & pineapple grated cheese & cucumber

Alternatives to sandwiches:

These ideas make a change to sandwiches:

- food that can be eaten raw or needs to be cooked first

Talking points:

the colour, feel and taste of different fruit and vegetables where fruit and vegetables grow e.g. on a tree, in the ground

Fruit & Vegetables

Aim to include two items from this group for crunch, colour and health (e.g. add as a sandwich filling and as a separate item):

tomato - sliced or chopped carrot - whole, grated or sticks apple - whole or grated with cheese cucumber - sliced or chunks to crunch sweetcorn lettuce - shredded mustard and cress or watercress peppers - rings, slices or chopped coleslaw peaches - whole or mixed in filling pears - ordinary or avocado melon mixed salad - as filling or separate banana - whole or mashed as filling dried fruit - such as sultanas, raisins, apricots

Foods high in fat and sugar

If your child eats foods such as crisps, biscuits and cakes at home there is no need to include any in a lunch box. But if you do put anything extra in their box here are some healthier ideas:

tea cake or currant bun

pancakes

plain popcorn

plain biscuits

breadsticks

crackers

fruit cake

Allergies and nuts

If there is a family history of allergies e.g. asthma, eczema, hayfever, nut or other food allergy you should not give your child peanuts or foods containing groundnut oil until they are at least 3 years old (Birth to Five 2005).

Do not give any type of whole nuts to children under five in case of choking.

If you have any concerns about allergies or nuts, please inform the person caring for your child.

Food safety

- i Warm conditions can encourage the growth of bacteria so it is important to keep packed lunches cold.
- i Pack the food in an insulated cool bag or lunch box along with an ice pack. This should be done all year round but it is especially important during summer months.
- i If you make the packed lunch the night before, store it in the fridge. Do not store it in a warm room or by a radiator.
- i Remember to wash fruit and salads before eating them.
